A New Way to Advance Human–Wildlife Interactions

SUPPORT THE JACK H. BERRYMAN INSTITUTE MISSION

The Jack H. Berryman Institute (BI) is an international organization housed in the Department of Wildland Resources, Quinney College of Natural Resources, Utah State University, Logan, Utah, USA. The BI publishes the only scientific journal, Human–Wildlife Interactions, dedicated to reporting research, management case studies, and policy perspectives designed to enhance human–wildlife interactions.

We work with our partners and stakeholders to better manage human–wildlife conflicts through research, education, extension, and outreach. We leverage our resources with those provided by our partners to provide the best available science to mitigate the need to designate species as threatened and endangered, and mitigate the impacts of invasive and overabundant species on the sustainable use of natural resources. We also seek the resolution of conflicts that may arise in the multiple-use management of private, state, provincial, and federal lands.

“YOUR SUPPORT will allow us to better prepare students for professional careers in human–wildlife conflict management. Your support will also enable us to continue to share innovative research and management case studies at local, state, regional, provincial, national, and international forums leading to public policies to manage human–wildlife conflicts, species conservation, and enhanced professional wildlife damage and invasive species management.”
